Artist Spotlight

TODD LONGBOAT

Ho-den-hya-wen'deh, "He Stands by the Sky," is Onondaga, Wolf Clan from the Six Nations of the Grand River Reserve born May 10th, 1978. He is the grandson of the late Chief Jake Thomas Senior, who is widely known for Haudenosaunee teachings. Many of Todd's family members are carvers. Todd began carving soapstone at the age of 7. He started to carve wood at the age of 10 and then began to sell his art at the age of 11. Since then, Todd has made his living on his artwork. Through the rough times, he has stuck by his artistry and survived through his talents. He is proud that, despite the doubters and skeptics, he has been able to live and thrive off the talent Creator has given him. He loves what he does and does not see it as a job. Over the past 20 years, Todd has adapted and moulded techniques learned from his family into his own. This has led to his art being sold around the world. When Todd carves a sculpture he begins with choosing the stone. His imagination is ignited in this initial process of choosing the stone. He looks at the stone and begins to see what it is he wants to carve. His artwork represents the teachings and stories of the Haudenosaunee.

TIM DE ROSE

Born in Toronto, Tim has spent his life as an artist creating unique pieces in a variety of mediums. From a very young age, Tim was drawn to the arts and started drawing, painting and acting. Now Tim makes his living primarily as a potter with his wife Diane Creber at Wilton Pottery. In the off-season, he paints large canvases exploding with colour. Tim's paintings change depending on his mood and his influences. He often paints trees and groups of trees, whether discovered in Newfoundland, Kenya, or in his backyard. Many layers of paint create a sense of depth in his work.

STEPHEN SCOTT PATTERSON

Stephen Scott Patterson began making colour photographs of the landscape after acquiring his first 35 mm camera in 1983. He is mainly self-taught with the exception of having spent time with master colour photographer Ernst Haas in 1985, who gave him tremendous encouragement; at this time he was carefully studying the work of painters as well as photographers, citing the impressionists and abstract expressionists as key inspirations for his photography. Photographic quests have taken him to Australia, New Zealand, the United States, the Galapagos Islands and Ecuador, The Canadian Rockies, the Queen Charlotte Islands, and throughout his home province of Nova Scotia.
